"OPPENHEIM'S BEST NOVEL"

A Prince of Sinners

By E. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM

Author of "The Traitors," etc.

Harry Thurston Peck, Editor of "The Bookman," says of this popular novel:

"A well compacted and exceedingly interesting story of English political and social life, making no demands upon one's credulity, but satisfying the requirements in the way of a thoroughly good novel. The characters are all drawn with real fidelity to life."

"To-day," London, says:

"It is by far the best and most thoughtful of his numerous novels."

B. O. Flower, Editor of "The Arena," says:

"Unquestionably one of the very best volumes of fiction of the year."

NEW FICTION

READY SEPTEMBER FIRST

THE MILLIONAIRE'S SON

A Novel

By ANNA ROBESON BROWN

Author of "The Immortal Garland," "The Cosmopolitan Comedy,"
"Truth and a Woman," "Sir Mark," etc.

THE story of a young man's struggle to choose between the material advantages of wealth, questionably obtained and ostentatiously spent, and the higher claims of social service. This novel is a study in temperament and heredity, and a brilliant satire on social conditions in America. But first of all it is an absorbing story, told with remarkable facility and power. The central situation on which the plot turns is one of the most original in modern fiction. Illustrated with full-page drawings by A. E. Becher.

Cloth, 12mo, $1.50

READY SEPTEMBER FIFTEENTH

FLORESTANE, THE TROUBADOUR

A Romance

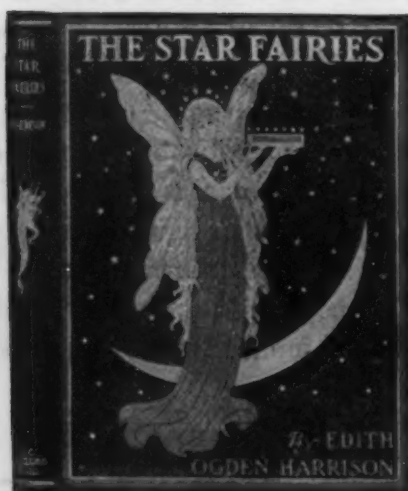

By JULIA DE WOLF ADDISON

THIS novel carries the reader back to the Middle Ages, with their Courts of Love, minstrels, jongleurs, knights, and crusaders, and introduces among its characters Dante, Cimabue, Sordello, and other celebrated men. The atmosphere is that of chivalric ideals, with a background of medieval color and romance. The book is crowded with exciting episodes; once taken up, it will not easily be laid aside until finished. It combines every element of a successful novel, not omitting to mention the mechanical requisites of attractive binding and typography.

Cloth, 12mo, $1.00

FREDERICK
PALMER

A remarkably vivid and interesting novel. Ready early in September

THE VACABOND

THE first novel of a man already distinguished as a correspondent, and known to many readers as the author of "Ways of the Service": a novel into which the Civil War enters, though both the character of its plot and its chief strength are determined by the individuality of its hero, a memorable character whose search for "a mountain, a mine, and a girl" is strenuous and concentrated enough to belie his nickname. Mr. Palmer's fighting has about it neither nonsense nor exaggeration.

JOHN FOX, Jr.

Early in September we shall publish in book form

The LITTLE SHEPHERD of KINGDOM COME

FROM the start the great success of this novel is assured. No serial for many years has attracted more enthusiastic comment, North and South. This is owing to many attractive qualities, but above all to the simplicity and pathos of its characters and the admirable writing which Mr. Fox has shown on every page. He has pictured sympathetically boy life among the Kentucky mountaineers; life at a blue-grass college in the simple days before the war; class feeling between the mountaineer and the "furriner," which persists to the present day; the way in which Kentucky was rent asunder by the Civil War; and the romantic glory of Morgan's men. The whole book is bound together by a beautiful love-story.

His most successful novel

CORDON KEITH

THE extraordinary sales of this novel during the late spring and all summer fully justify this prediction of the N. Y. Times Saturday Review:

"It is not only racy and admirable as fiction, but historically valuable as a study of actual conditions and ethically elevating in its ideals. Like all Mr. Page has written, it is on the side of 'whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are pure.' It deserves the large public it is sure to have, and will leave them the better for the reading."

NOTES IN SEASON.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS have just ready "The Vagabond," by Frederick Palmer; and "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come," illustrated by F. C. Yohn. "Gordon Keith," by Thomas Nelson Page, gives every evidence of having started on a most successful career.

A. C. McCLURG & Co. will publish at once "The Castle of Twilight," by Margaret Horton Potter, author of "Uncanonized," illustrated in color by Charles Weber; and "The Star Fairies and Other Tales," by Mrs. Edith Ogden Harrison, illustrated in color by Lucy Fitch Perkins.

DANA ESTES & Co. announce for publication early in September "The Millionaire's Son," by Anna Robeson Brown, a novel of social life to-day, showing the struggle between the temptation to spend wealth for material comfort and the desire to use it in the service of others; and "Florentane the Troubadour," a romance of the days of the Provençal courts of love, by Julia DeWolf Addison.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & Co. have now ready "Monsigny," by Justus Miles Forman, author of "Journey's End," already in its eleventh thousand. Monsigny is the name of a magnificent French estate, where the heroine has grown up with an English father and grandfather until the age of twenty, when her quiet, ideal life is suddenly changed. It is called "the romance of the most beautiful woman in Europe."

DODD, MEAD & Co. announce a most attractive list of early fall publications. These include five new novels: "The Sherrods," George Barr McCutcheon's strong story of primitive mountain life, which has won many readers during its serial course in the Bookman; "Katherine Frensham," by Beatrice Harraden, said to be a keen and original study of character; "The Black Shilling," a story of Salem witchcraft days, by Amelia E. Barr; "The Yellow Crayon," by E. Phillips Oppenheim; and "An April Princess," by A. Constance Smedley. There are also two books of wide practical and artistic value in W. D. Ellwanger's volume on "The Oriental Rug," treating authoritatively of Oriental weaves and fabrics; and "Homes and Their Decoration," in which Lillie Hamilton French gives advice and suggestions for all home-makers and home-lovers.

A. S. BARNES & Co. will publish shortly "His Little World," by Samuel Merwin, who has written a story of the Great Lakes, with a real life who does a real man's work. The novel is described as remarkably fresh and vigorous and alive throughout. This is a tale of a man's love and also a man's power of self-sacrifice, and the motives are said to be developed with peculiar skill, while the local color of the story is exceptionally picturesque, as might be expected from a brilliant writer whose life of observation on the Great Lakes has made him master of a rich field.

A. S. BARNES & Co. will shortly issue "Within the Pale," by Michael Davitt, a true history of anti-Semitic persecution in Russia. Arthur Brisbane writes: "Michael Davitt is a trained observer, and as an Irishman he is farthest removed from any possible suspicion of bias in favor of the Jew. His account of Russia's 'government murders' based on religious hatred and fear of competition will be a valuable addition to the history of our own slow progress towards human decency." In lighter vein will be "His Little World," the story of Hunch Badeau, by Samuel Merwin. Hunch Badeau is a sailor on Lake Michigan, but is also at home amid the buzz and clatter of a great saw-mill. He has a big heart and will make many friends.

"The present work is devoted to the history of Beatrice, Duchess of Milan, who, as the wife of Lodovico Sforza, reigned during six years over the most splendid court of Italy. The charm of her personality, the important part which she played in political life at a critical moment of Italian history, her love of music and poetry, and the fine taste which she inherited, in common with every princess of the house of Este, all help to make Beatrice singularly attractive, while the interest which she inspires is deepened by the pathos of her sudden and early death."—Preface. Beatrice was the younger sister of Isabella d'Este, Marchioness of Mantua.

Old favorite songs: 39 best loved songs. Springfield, Ill., Illinois State Register, 1903. 8°, pap., 25 c.

Osborn, Loran D.: The recovery and restatement of the Gospel. Chic., University of Chicago Press, 1903. c. 26+253 p. D. cl., $1.50 net.

The work tells the history of the early transformation of the gospel as it came in contact with its early environment, and shows further that the new Bible-study movement of the century has done much to bring Christianity back to its original sources, and with a result of a clearer understanding of the gospel of Jesus than any other age has possessed. Throughout the whole book the author emphasizes the loyalty to Jesus Christ as a governing position in Christian thinking.

Paret, Jahial Parmly. How to play lawn tennis; containing practical instruction from an expert on making lawn tennis strokes; brief description and history of the game. N. Y., American Sports Publishing Co., [1903.] c. 80 p. il. 16°, (Spalding's athletic lib., v. 14, no. 157.) pap., 10 c.

Patterson, Annie W. Schumann. N. Y., Dutton, 1903. 15+232 p. il. por. D. (Master musicians; ed. by F. J. Crowest.) cl., $1.25.

The writer believes that Schumann's claims upon the public for recognition as a musician are so great, that the man is little known to us. In presenting his personality, she has sought, by a careful and thorough analysis of his essays and correspondence, to comply with the wish of his late distinguished wife that the man himself should be allowed speech through his writings, and especially his letters. Frequent references have been made to the published and unpublished letters of Robert Schumann.

Rogers, Andrew J. The passing of Satan, death and hell: the solution of the allegory. Richmond, Va., [published by the author, A. J. Rogers,] 1903. c. 5-227 p. por. D. cl., $1.

The writer calls this a "story," but it is really a series of interesting religious discussions between the Rev. Thomas Hopkins, the newly installed pastor of the leading Methodist church of the town of Kempton, and one of the officers of his church, whose liberal interpretation of the teachings of the Bible has caused much adverse criticism. Mr. Hopkins gives Mr. Greenhow a long hearing on the subjects of Satan, death and hell, and finally admits that though his views are apparently unorthodox they are in harmony with the spirit of the Bible.

Stringer, Arthur. The silver poppy: a novel. N. Y., Appleton, 1903. [Ag.] c. 5+291 p. D. cl., $1.50.

"The silver poppy" was the title of a novel by which the heroine, a clever western girl, had gained a reputation and became the protégée of a rich New York woman, striving hopelessly to enter the ranks of the "four hundred." The hero is a graduate of Oxford, drifted into the ranks of New York journalism. An old artist plays Deus ex machina and makes some far-reaching discoveries about "The silver poppy." Day and night life in New York City are described by one who is initiated as to the life of various classes of its busy citizens.

Stuart tracts, 1603-1693; with an introd. by C. H. Firth. N. Y., Dutton, 1903. 36+514 p. O. (An English garner.) cl., *$1.25 net.

"The tracts that stand first in this volume describe the accession of James I. and the rejoicings which accompanied his progress from Scotland to London. To them is prefixed, in order to explain the narratives followed, Sir Robert Carey's account of the circumstances of Queen Elizabeth's death, and of the manner in which he brought the news to Edinburgh."—Introduction.

Sturber, D. I. The anarchist constitution. San Francisco, Radical Publishing Co., [1903.] c. 3-188 p. D. pap., 50 c.

The author calls himself an "anarchist." The "constitution" he offers is an original composition, reflecting his anarchistical theories.

"The aim of the present work is to perform what will seem to many the impossible task of covering within the compass of a handy volume the salient features of the history of the British nation as it now stands before the world and on the basis of the fuller information which modern research has made accessible. Though political development has been kept to the front, about one-third of the chapters are devoted to social life. By recognizing the principle that the less important periods may be passed over lightly to leave room for fuller treatment of great eras, the author has tried to avoid the dullness of mere annals."—Preface.

BUSINESS NOTES.

CHICAGO, ILL.—Rand, McNally & Co., employing more than 1000 persons, are preparing to move their two big plants from Chicago in order to escape labor troubles. For some time the company has had several sites under contemplation. Officials of the company say that it was impossible to maintain a plant like theirs in Chicago and meet the demands of the unions and compete with the jobbing trade.

HAMMOND, IND.—W. B. Conkey Company, on account of their large and steadily increasing business, will establish a branch plant at Holland, Ind., employing 600 men and women. The W. B. Conkey Company are among the largest publishers in the United States. Their plant at Hammond covers six acres, and with their new plant they will probably double their output. The company has a capitalization of $2,000,000.

THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

AUGUST 22, 1903.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

SALESMEN WITH IDEALS.

A YOUNG man who was about to start on his maiden trip for a large publishing house was asked by the senior member of the firm whether he had confidence in what he was about to undertake. "Certainly," said the young man, "I have been taught that 'he who aims too low aims beneath the sky.'" The old gentleman remarked, "Take care, take care that you don't aim beyond the sky." And much needed advice this is to many another strenuous youth who, as he starts out on his business career, intent upon coming out ahead, shoots at random beyond the sky, and often is in danger of shooting himself. Aiming beyond the sky is quite as useless as aiming at the solid earth. Not that we would discourage a higher than average aim; on the contrary; but the lesson the young man must learn is that the aim must be definite. There must be a plan, a motive, an idea clearly fixed in the mind, to attain to which every nerve should be strained. With an incentive, backed by character, seemingly insurmountable obstacles may be overcome.

Numbers of men leave their schools and homes every year for their ventures in the world without the semblance even of an idea. Year in and year out they do exactly what they are told and not a particle more. They fill their places in the establishment about as the shelves and counters and other store fixtures do, though hardly as uncomplainingly, oblivious of the fact that they exist simply as items of expense, and contribute in no wise to the enlargement of the business. On the other hand, the young man with an incentive, with a definite plan in life, ambitious to be more than a "sweeper in the temple," who reads, thinks and puts two and two together, resolves and plans that his apprenticeship must fit him for a position in which he can have more scope for his energies. He keeps a sharp lookout on all that is hourly occurring around him, and absorbs inspiration from all quarters as Smiles's "Joe Ladle" did, even at the pores. He determines to make himself of so much value to his employers that they will not care to do without him. The secret of his success is not "luck," but his determination to do something definite; to make himself by punctuality, by attention to all the small rules and regulations of the concern, by cleanliness, honesty, sobriety, and by incessant application and enterprise, a power in the business. Any man with tact and application will, other things being equal, be able to reach a certain altitude of success in the commercial world; but the eminence attained will always depend and be in proportion to a previously conceived ideal based on a man's conviction and ability to estimate himself at his true value.

Of course it is essential that a man should know himself thoroughly, and only accept positions for which knowledge and experience have educated him, because if he has false notions of his own value failure is certain. Yet there is danger also in underrating one's self. Indeed, confidence in himself and in the prestige of his house, based on rectitude and on goods of sterling value, should be the salesman's tower of strength. A commercial traveller's sales, as one thoroughly acquainted with the subject has written, "will be much about what his preconceived notion of what they should be; and there is scarcely a limit to the amount if the ambassador's idea is but a high one." It is imperative to keep on aiming upwards, as the result must be in proportion to the object aimed at, hence the well-known figures attained by different men, one man with a high ideal doing treble the amount of business over a poor ground done by another whose standard is a low one. "According to thy faith" is as applicable to business as it is to ethics; and a constant application to doing an honest day's work is as necessary to morals as it is to making a fortune.

A SCHOOL OF JOURNALISM FOR COLUMBIA.

On the 15th inst. President Nicholas Murray Butler, of Columbia, announced that a gift of one million dollars had been made to Columbia University by Joseph Pulitzer, for the establishment and endowment of a school of journalism. It was stated that in founding this school Mr. Pulitzer was carrying out a long-cherished desire to see in existence some effective means of training for journalistic work. The new school will, it is hoped, be ready for students in the autumn of 1904. It is to have a building of its own, for which McKim, Mead & White have been commissioned to make plans, costing about $500,000, when fully equipped; and it is to rank as a professional school with the other university schools of law, medicine, engineering, architecture and teaching. It will be administered by a special faculty of journalism, and will have an advisory board, of which the following members have already been named by Mr. Pulitzer: Nicholas Murray Butler, White-law Reid, John Hay, St. Clair McKelway, Andrew D. White, Victor F. Lawson, General Charles H. Taylor and President Eliot, of Harvard. These members, with others to be selected later, will be formally nominated by the trustees of Columbia at their meeting in October. A committee consisting of President Butler and Professors Burgess, Peck, Brander Matthews, Giddings and G. R. Carpenter has already been appointed to present a report to the University Council on the organization and academic relations of the school.

OBITUARY NOTES.

MOSES POLOCK.

MOSES POLOCK, the oldest publisher and bookseller in the United States, died on August 16, at the residence of his sister, Mrs. Morris Rosenbach, 1409 North Eighteenth Street, Philadelphia. He was born in Philadelphia, May 14, 1817. He was seventy-two years in the book trade. In 1831 he entered the bookstore of McCarty & Davis, located on the north side of Market Street, near Fourth. He remained in their employ until the death of both members of the firm, and in 1850 he continued the business under his own name at 406 Commerce Street, in which location he had been ever since.

The business of Moses Pollock can trace a direct descent from 1790 in the following order:

- 1, Jacob Johnson, 1790-1808.
- 2, Johnson & Warner, 1808-1815.
- 3, Benjamin Warner, 1815-1818.
- 4, Executors of above, to 1824.
- 5, McCarty & Davis, 1824-1841.
- 6, Thomas Davis, 1841-1850.
- 7, Moses Pollock, 1850-1903.

As a publisher Moses Pollock came in contact with the most celebrated literary men of his day. He issued many books in fiction, the drama and in general literature. In 1857 he published the first collected edition of the works of Charles Brockden Brown. About this time he engaged in selling old and rare books, and he was the first dealer in the United States that dealt exclusively in them, particularly in Americana. Mr. Pollock was an authority on this subject, and bibliographers have not failed to acknowledge the assistance he has rendered them. Most of the great American libraries were indebted to his collections, including James Lenox, the founder of the Lenox Library; John Carter Brown, of Providence, R. I.; George Brinley and the Historical Society of Pennsylvania. During the last fifty years his shop was frequented by book-lovers from all over the country, but in recent years he made little effort to sell his treasures, and gathered together a collection of the rarest and choicest books relating to this country. His fine collection of Washingtoniana is well known.

In 1895 he sold at auction a collection of books printed by Benjamin Franklin, the sale attracting wide attention. He was more of a booklover than a dealer, and parted reluctantly, if at all, with his books. His knowledge of the early history of Pennsylvania, and particularly of Philadelphia, was most profound, and historians constantly applied to him for assistance.

NOAH BROOKS, one of the oldest of American writers, died August 16 in Pasadena, Cal., where he had lived for a year in strict incognito. Although he had money and servants, he almost became a hermit, and refused to tell who he was. No relative or friend was near him when he died and his housekeeper did not know anything about him. The cause of his death is unknown. Noah Brooks was born in 1830, at Castine, Me. He had a varied career. Beginning as a newspaper man in Boston, when he was twenty years old, he had been a newspaper proprietor in California, a war correspondent, a newspaper worker on other Western and Eastern journals, a naval officer, and a writer of a number of boys' books and several biographical, political and historical studies. Among his literary works are: "Boy Emigrants," "The Fairport Nine," "Our Baseball Club," "Abraham Lincoln," "The Boy Settlers," "The Story of Marco Polo" and "Scribner's History of the United States." Mr. Brooks began his newspaper career in Boston in 1850. He went to California in 1859, and with Benjamin P. Avery established The Marysville Appeal. From 1862 to 1865 Brooks was a war correspondent for The Sacramento Union. He became a naval officer of the port of San Francisco in 1865-'66. After that he plunged into newspaper work once more, and became managing editor of The Alta Californian, which position he held from 1866 to 1871. He then came East and worked on the staff of The New York Tribune from 1871 to 1875. He afterward went to The New York Times, where he remained until 1884. He then became editor of The Newark Advertiser, and kept this place until 1894. Mr. Brooks leaves a large estate.

LEWIS G. BELL, of the J. P. Bell Company, Lynchburg, Va., died suddenly on August 10.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

MARGARET E. SANGSTER is editing an important new series of books for Messrs. A. S. Barnes & Co., of which announcement will be made later.

PROFESSOR EDWARD MIMS, of Trinity College, N. C., has been selected to prepare the life of Sidney Lanier, which is to be included in the American Men of Letters series.

ELLEN GLASGOW has found a summer home in a small village well up in the Alps, where she is now engaged in writing the last chapters of "The Deliverance," which Doubleday, Page & Co. have announced for publication in December or January. The new novel is said to most resemble "The Voice of the People" of any of the novels she has written.

ALFRED HENRY LEWIS has just completed, for publication later in the season by A. S. Barnes & Co., a remarkable story of city life, entitled "The Boss," in which he gives the inner story of boss rule, "graft" and the conduct of "the organization." The subject is certainly timely, and the author's name is guarantee of the satisfactory manner in which it will be handled.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

ONE of the best stories written by B. L. Farjeon, who died only a short time ago, was a children's story. It has been secured by the publishers of St. Nicholas, and will figure as the chief serial in that periodical during the coming year.

THOMAS BAILEY ALDRICH contributes to the September Scribner's a sketch of an old book-lover, who for many years haunted the book shops in Boston, and who wrote little essays in the manner of Charles Lamb, which he signed "Tom Folio."

A PROJECT is afoot to establish in New York a Roman Catholic newspaper, under the title of the National Catholic. If the present plan is carried out the first issue of the paper will appear on Saturday, October 3. The intention is to place the new publication under the direction of Dominic I. Murphy, the present editor of the New Century, a Catholic weekly published in Washington. It is said that a number of Catholic financiers in New York have signified their intention of backing the project. The idea is to have the National Catholic appear semi-weekly at first and eventually develop into a daily publication.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

LITTLE, BROWN & Co. call special attention to E. Phillips Oppenheim's "A Prince of Sinners," which is meeting with great success among people whose opinion is of value.

E. J. CLODE, New York City, has just ready "The Wings of Morning," by Louis Tracy, a novel of strong human interest, dealing with China Sea pirates, shipwreck and adventures in Malay, and full of interesting live people and unhackneyed adventures and romance.

D. APPLETON & Co. have just ready the following books recently announced: Nimrod's

"Memoirs of the Life of John Mytton;" "The Tour of Dr. Syntax in Search of the Picturesque;" "Animal Studies," by Jordan, Kellogg and Heath; "The British Nation," by George M. Wrong; "The Silver Poppy," by Arthur Stringer; and "Essays and Addresses," by Jules Cambon, ambassador from France to the United States.

THE AMERICAN NEWS COMPANY will bring out Anthony Hope's "Quisante" as No. 37 in the very successful People's Library. This book is one of the author's best efforts at character delineation. The foreigner, Alexander Quisante, whom Mary Gaston marries against the wishes of her entire family, is drawn with great skill, and the social and political life of London makes an excellent setting for the original characters.

HENRY CAREY BAIRD & Co. report that while their book, Flemming's "Practical Tanning," has proved a pronounced success at home, they have filled orders for it from Canada, Mexico, Great Britain, France, Belgium, Germany, Austria, Italy, Russia, Turkey, Australia and Japan. The American processes of tanning are at present attracting world-wide attention, and for fifty years Henry Carey Baird & Co. have been publishers of books on tanning, having during that time issued five different elaborate treatises on the subject.

McCLURE, PHILLIPS & Co. will make notable contributions to fiction during September. Among the earliest comers will be "The Adventures of Gerard," by A. Conan Doyle, stories of a brigadier in Napoleon's army; "The Long Night," by Stanley J. Weyman, a tale of Geneva in the early days of the seventeenth century; "In Babel," short stories by George Ade on life in Chicago, which is the "Babel;" "The Master Rogue," the confessions of a Croesus, by David Graham Phillips; and a new juvenile by Joel Chandler Harris, entitled "Wally Wanderoon and His Story-Telling Machine," which promises to be among the most popular of the holiday books.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS have just ready an attractive new edition of Bayard Taylor's "Story of Kennett," that charming story of old-time village life which has kept its hold on a generation of readers. It is illustrated from photographs giving views of the old Pennsylvania tour of Kennett Square. They have also published "Limanora, the Island of Progress," in which Godfrey Sweven has given a sequel to his "Riallaro," published a year or two ago. Like its predecessor, it is both a satire and an allegory, describing a Darwinian experiment in artificial selection on a Southern Pacific archipelago, where various communities are established of morally diseased and normally healthy persons.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & Co. are about to add to their various issues of Rudyard Kipling's works an illustrated edition of "The Light That Failed," with scenes from the dramatized version which is to be produced in September with Forbes Robertson and Miss Gertrude Elliott in the leading rôles. "The Pit," Frank Norris's story novel of wheat speculation, is also to be put upon the stage this autumn, and a complete memorial edition of Norris's works will be brought out at the same time. The same house has issued the third part of "The Poultry Book," in close succession to Part II. This section has mainly to do with incubating and rearing, and is written by Thomas F. McGrew and James E. Rice, of New York State. The colored plates of this number, by Harrison Weir, are unusually fine.

BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY will shortly publish "The Fortunes of Fifi," by Molly Eliot Seawell, a delicious little comedy in which gay humor, a pretty sentiment and some very amusing situations all find a place. Later they will issue "The City of the King," a description of the Holy Land by Mrs. Lew Wallace; "His Pa's Romance," a volume of poems by James Whitcomb Riley; and several juveniles of great importance. Among the fiction under way may be mentioned "Tomorrow's Tangle," a story of life in California at the time of the gold craze of 1849, by Geraldine Bonner; "She That Hesitates," by Harris Dickson, author of "The Black Wolf's Breed;" "The Torch," a romance of college life, by Herbert M. Hopkins; and "The Way to the West," by Emerson Hough, author of "The Mississippi Bubble."

THOMAS Y. CROWELL & Co. have a long and notable list of fall announcements. "Parsifal," Wagner's great music drama, as retold by Oliver Huckel, will be brought out in handsome form, with illustrations by Stassen and special type designs by the Merrymont Press; and there will be handsome holiday editions of "Henry Esmond," "Tom Brown's School Days" and "Tom Brown at Oxford." A volume full of historical and personal interest is promised in Geraldine Brooks's "Romances of Colonial Days," with illustrations by Becher, while attractive form will be given to "A Little Book of Poets' Parleys," by Charlotte Porter and Helen A. Clarke; and "Joy and Power," by Henry Van Dyke. The complete works of Adelaide Procter and of Edmund Spenser will be issued in standard form, and new issues in the Handy Volume sets are "Don Quixote" and the "Pembroke" edition of Shakespeare, while the complete works of the Brontë sisters, of Fielding and of Smollett will appear in the series of standard sets. There will be attractive new books for young people in the Children's Favorite Classics and the Twentieth Century Juveniles, among them a new collection of Æsop's fables, a special edition of "Pilgrim's Progress," and stories by Anna Chapin Ray, Mary F. Leonard, Evelyn Raymond, and other popular writers.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. will publish the following fiction in October: "Daphne," by Margaret Sherwood, a fanciful idyl, full of a sense of the genial pagan spirit, telling the love story of an American girl in Italy; "Long Will," a story of life in England in the century of Chaucer, by Florence Converse, with illustrations; "Leslie Chilton," by Eliza Orne White, a love story with much clever conversation by people holding opposite opinions as to the position of women; "The Little Chevalier," by M. E. M. Davis, a romance of the French regime in New Orleans in the early xviii century; also, "A Listener in Babel," by Vida D. Scudder, a series of imaginary conversations dealing vigorously with the great social questions of the day from the standpoint of a noble idealism. They also promise for October a collection of essays by Thomas Bailey Aldrich, entitled "Ponkapog Papers;" "The Gentle Reader," by Samuel M. Crothers, who has resurrected the delightful literary guardian little heard of since Thackeray's day, and treated him much as Holmes treated the "Autocrat;" "Essays on Great Writers," by Henry D. Sedgwick, Jr.; nine essays dealing with Macaulay, Thackeray, Scott, D'Annunzio, Montaigne and others; "Comments of Dante's Divina Commedia by John Ruskin," now first collected by Charles Eliot Norton; "The Great Poets of Italy," a readable handbook of Italian poetry, with translations by Oscar Kuhns; "Henry Ward Beecher," a study and interpretation of the great preacher's life and character, by Lyman Abbott; also, "Reminiscences of an Astronomer," the autobiography of Professor Simon Newcomb, one of America's most eminent astronomers.

HARPER & BROTHERS will bring out early in September a new volume by W. D. Howells, to be called "Letters Home." This is a novel of modern American life, told in a series of letters written to their homes by a group of people living in New York, whose impressions of New York society and whose tangled love affairs are depicted with all the cleverness and insight of this veteran observer. "The Heart of Hyacinth" is a new romance of Japanese life by Onoto Watanna, issued uniform with last year's charming edition of that author's "A Japanese Nightingale." It is the romance of an American girl born in Japan and brought up in a Japanese environment, and it is decorated with marginal drawings in tint by a Japanese artist and with many colored illustrations. Robert W. Chambers will have a new romance, called "The Maids of Paradise," set in the days of the Franco-Prussian War, in an idyllic French village, and having for its central figures an adventurous American and a young French countess. Other September fiction includes "A Candle of Understanding," by Elizabeth Bisland, a love story of Mississippi and New York; a volume of striking short stories by Margaret Briscoe, called "The Change of Heart," and "Judgment," a story of strong dramatic interest, by Alice Brown. The third volume is announced of Poultney Bigelow's history of "The Struggle for German Liberty;" and Maeterlinck's much-discussed drama, "Monna Vanna," will be brought out in an English translation. The new fall juvenile books are most attractive. Robert Chambers will follow his "Outdoorland" with a companion volume on "Orchardland," full of nature fancy, and illustrated in color and black and white by R. B. Birch. There will be a new book by Gertrude Smith, called "The Stories of Peter and Ellen;" Thomas Nelson Page's "Two Prisoners" will be issued in a new holiday edition; and two books full of childish fun are announced in Nevill Cain's "Fairies' Circus" and Oron von Gottschalck's "Innocent Industries."

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted" book-trade subscribers are given the privilege of a free advertisement for books out of print, of five nonpareil lines exclusive of address, in any issue except special numbers, to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents a line, and amount should be inclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents a line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents a nonpareil line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

All other small, undisplayed, advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents a nonpareil line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their communications.

BOOKS WANTED.

In answering, please state edition, condition, and price, including postage or express charges.

Houses that are willing to deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word (Cash).

Write your wants plainly and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as not having been received. The "Publishers' Weekly" does not hold itself responsible for errors.

It should be understood that the appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the "Publishers' Weekly" does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it is endeavored to safeguard these columns by withdrawing the privilege of their use from advertisers who are not "good pay," booksellers should take the usual precaution, as to advertisers not known to them, that they would take in making sales to any unknown parties.

His Little World

The Story of Hunch Badeau

By SAMUEL MERWIN

Author of "The Road to Frontenac," joint author of "Calumet K," etc.

12mo, cloth, illustrated, $1.25

THOSE who like genuine manhood will like Hunch Badeau. He lives in a country full of interest and incident, on the shore of Lake Michigan. He is a sailor, but he is also at home amid the buzz and clatter of the great saw-mills. He knows love, and he knows friendship. He doesn't preach, in fact his language isn't fitted to the pulpit, but unconsciously, and prompted simply by the bigness of his heart, he exemplifies the teachings of the Sermon on the Mount. Many things happen in this novel. Some of them are exciting, some pathetic, some humorous. This story is fresh, strong and real, and it takes hold. Readers will like it, and they will remember Hunch Badeau.

Later in September there will be published in America and in England Mr. Michael Davitt's Dramatic History

Within the Pale

The true history of Anti-Semitic persecution in Russia.
A civil war against a race and its effect on America.

By MICHAEL DAVITT

$1.20 net.

MR. ARTHUR BRISBANE writes:

"No man can describe the conditions in Russia better than Michael Davitt. He is a trained observer, and as an Irishman he is farthest removed from any possible suspicion of bias in favor of the Jews. His account of Russia's "government murders," based on religious hatred and fear of competition, will be a valuable addition to the history of our own slow progress toward human decency."

PUBLISHERS are gradually realizing the importance of two vital facts, especially when contemplating having large editions bound.

FIRST—To have their books bound in the best possible manner.

SECOND—To save enough money thereon as will guarantee an enormous annual extra dividend.

You are certainly not averse to making money. Ask me to submit samples and estimates. You will then follow the lead of some of the best publishing houses who find it profitable to give me their work.

A Word to the Bookseller

*It is not our business to teach you your business.
But we may be able to give you some pointers on selling our books. From time to time we shall make an attempt on this page.*

What will be the good selling books in September?
We can give a guess at some.

Everyone will want A. CONAN DOYLE'S latest

The Adventures of Gerard

in which delightfully egotistic old Gerard tells the experiences of his youth, when he was a brigadier in Napoleon's army. These tales of adventures in love and war, following the Little Corporal through all his campaigns, are told with stirring swiftness and sharpness. The grizzled old hero-veteran is a splendid loveable character, quite as good in his way as Sherlock Holmes. The book is illustrated by W. B. Wollen.

DAVID GRAHAM PHILLIPS has a peculiarly trenchant way of presenting types and phases of American life. His amusing social satire "Golden Fleece" was one of the "best selling books" last season. His new book to be brought out this month, has all the characteristics of Mr. Phillips' other work. It is the confessions of a Croesus and tells of a man whose greed for gold so enslaved him that he lost all moral sense, becoming a beast of prey, a social pariah, and commercial cormorant. The book presents a picture of American commercialism not easily forgotten, and is of unusual power, because of its truthfulness. There are pictures by Gordon H. Grant.

As a laugh provoker and wielder of original slang, GEORGE ADE needs no introduction. In his new book which is a series of brief vivid tales of life in and about Chicago, he presents himself in a different light. These little hammer-stroke stories are told in pure English, and are full of remarkable realism. They are affectingly human, and in not a few the author invites you to weep with him. They epitomize, with surprising force and inclusiveness, life, above and below, in the great western metropolis.

Good romance never lacks readers, and of the highest type of romance is STANLEY WEYMAN'S latest book

The Long Night

This story of love, war, witchcraft, and alchemy in old Geneva sweeps you along breathlessly from incident to incident. Your interest in the young heroine, accused of witchcraft, and the theological student, her lover, rises steadily to the last pages, where in a chapter of whirlwind fighting, he saves the town, and rescues her from her accusers. You lay the book down convinced that Weyman is the master romancer. The pictures are by Solomon J. Solomon.

Grown ups, as well as children, welcome the stories of JOEL CHANDLER HARRIS. His

contains something to satisfy all. The idea of the "story-telling machine" binds together a sheaf of as charmingly sweet and imaginative tales as the creator of "Uncle Remus" ever wrote. The quaint illustrations by Karl Moseley are rarely original and artistic. They will unfailingly delight children. The book is uniform in make up with "Aaron in the Wild Woods," and "Mr. Thimblefinger."

These are but a few of the books announced by us for publication in September
